Police Practice and Research: An International Journal (PPR) is committed to bringing the latest research/practice on policing to its worldwide audience of scholars, practitioners, policy makers and academics. One example of this commitment is the publication of Special Issues that focus on a single important topic.

In continuing this tradition, Police Practice and Research is proud to announce the following forthcoming issues:

“Policing Drug Markets”

Professor Eduardo Paes-Machado, Universidade Federal de Bahia
Professor Christopher Birbeck, University of Salford, UK

“Police Leadership and Wrongful Conviction”

Dr David Lowe, principal lecturer at Liverpool John Moores University’s Law School
Mike Cunningham QPM Inspector of Constabulary for forces in the North of England

Forthcoming Books from Special Issues:

Special Issues, enlarged and updated, are published as books. Such forthcoming books are from Special issues, “Trends in Israeli Policing: Terrorism, Community, Victimization and Crime Control”, by David Weisburd, Badi Hasisi and Tal Jonathan-Zamir, Hebrew University, Jerusalem & “Police Reform Initiatives: The Brazilian Experience”, Wesley Skogan, Northwestern University, USA.

Invitation to Guest editors

Interested scholars, researchers, and practitioners are invited to submit proposals (i.e., topics) for Special Issues. Each Special Issue generally contains 6 papers and 2 book reviews. Interested Guest Editors should submit their proposals to Editor-in-Chief, Dilip K. Das – dilipkd@aol.com. Affiliated with IPES, www.ipes.info, PPR is a research and practice oriented, global journal that presents current and innovative academic police research as well as operational and administrative police innovations from around the world. Manuscripts are sought from practitioners, researchers and others interested in developments in policing, analysis of public order, and the state of safety as it affects the quality of life everywhere. A specific goal of the editors is to improve cooperation between those who are active in the field and those who are involved in academic research.

Those interested in submitting individual manuscripts for general issues should submit their manuscripts, in proper PPR format (see formatting instructions at <http://www.tandf.co.uk/Journals>) to Scholar One (<http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/gppr>).
